Aside from tooth decay, the presence of discolored teeth can also be detrimental to your health and bad for your social life. In this post, we look at the problems of yellow teeth and try to find out how you can get white teeth. In general, discoloration of teeth is a problem that is encountered by many people. There are a lot of reasons and factors that contribute to discoloration of teeth and most of the people don't realize that their dentist can help them. We all know that there are many things that can cause discoloration of teeth. However, if we talk about the causes of dental yellowing, we can have a look at these. Exposure of teeth to UV rays This is one of the main causes of teeth discoloration. Radiation exposure from outside can create this problem. If you've been caught in a sunburn or have been sweating a lot due to temperature changes, chances are your teeth could get discolored as a result. The worst affected areas are the root and surface of the teeth. Food and drink The primary causes for discolored teeth come from food and drinks. The substances can attack the enamel and turn it yellow. Smoking and using tobacco or alcohol can also be a contributing factor. The active ingredients that cause discoloration could also be present in medications, including those that are prescribed by your dentist. Other teeth problems Some other things that can lead to discoloration of teeth are gum disease, cavities and jaw problems. All these factors might play a role in causing discoloration of teeth. However, you need to consult your dentist as soon as you notice these abnormalities. If you have dental problems that are causing discoloration, it's a good idea to contact your dentist. He/she can offer you various solutions that can help you 3e33713323
