Cascading Style Sheets (CSS) are now powerful and widely used... In this article I'll show you the various ways to animate Flash SWF. It's all about how to create cool animations with Flash, or more specifically, how to animate Flash SWF in Macromedia Director. Add to the fact that these Flash animations are vector-based, you can animate them pretty much however you'd like. Creating a Flash Animation - Part I 1. Start a new Flash project by selecting New project > Flash Project, and create a new Flash file. 2. To create a simple animation, begin by creating a new Movie Clip. Drag the Loader symbol from the... If you're at all familiar with adobe.PDF files, you know that they are spreadsheets, with a lot of embedded data. Many people are surprised to discover that there is a lot of extra data in PDFs--I know I was, and have been reading a lot about it lately. Tightening the PDF 1. Once you have the PDF, using Adobe Acrobat or the free Adobe Reader, you can go to Tools>Options>Document Setup>PDF Files and click on Tighten. You can also do the same in the text menus, e.g., File>Properties>Tighten PDF. This will allow you to open the PDF in Acrobat, and view all of the embedded data. 2. You can also use the... In this article I'll show you some quick-and-easy ways to make data look like speech bubbles and arrows. There are a variety of ways to accomplish this. For example, you can either create a custom bitmap, or use Adobe Flash. Using HTML5 and Text Animation To do this in HTML5, you use the tag, and then use the transform property of the tag. Here is an example: Sorry, your browser does not support the HTML5 canvas tag. Click on the canvas above, and drag to a position on the screen. Notice the draggable... If you are running a Mac (a.k.a. MacOS X), then you have already seen the Mac-native version of Adobe Acrobat, which has the ability to "view" PDFs as screen captures. Adobe Reader for Mac
