However, as noted, the fact that plaintiff may have been released from the hospital and returned to work after only two days is irrelevant to this issue. Our Supreme Court has held that the standard of care applicable to a licensed physician is what a reasonably well-qualified specialist of the same discipline would have done under similar circumstances. Stinchfield, supra, 279 Or. at 670, 568 P.2d 1375. If, as a reasonably well-qualified specialist, Dr. Orme would have ordered that plaintiff refrain from all lifting after the April 11, 1990, surgery, and if he would have released plaintiff to return to work on that date, he did so. We agree with defendant that the issue before the trial court, therefore, was not whether defendant was negligent, but whether defendant's conduct fell below the standard of care. Therefore, plaintiff's remaining assignment of error, whether the trial court erred in denying his motion in limine to exclude Dr. Orme's *1041 written report, is moot, and we do not address it. The decision of the Court of Appeals is affirmed as to all issues except the trial court's ruling on plaintiff's claim of medical malpractice. As to that issue, the decision of the Court of Appeals is reversed, and the case is remanded to the circuit court for further proceedings. NOTES [1] ORS 13.715(1) provides: "A person need not be licensed to practice in this state in order to be licensed to practice medicine in the state of Oregon. A person must have a license to practice medicine in this state in order to practice medicine in the state of Oregon. However, a foreign licensed physician who is licensed to practice medicine in another state that
