CD200/A20 on peritoneal cells is upregulated and correlates with early rejection episodes in adult renal transplantation. Mesenchymal cells are involved in transplantation tolerance. In this regard, macrophage-derived CD200 promotes the activation, polarization, and survival of T cells, whereas CD200/A20 inhibits T-cell activation and promotes peripheral tolerance. CD200 is expressed in renal tubular cells; however, its expression on peritoneal cells has not been investigated. This study examined the expression of CD200 in peritoneal cells from pediatric patients. A significantly higher number of CD200+ peritoneal cells was present in patients undergoing successful adult renal transplantation compared with patients undergoing pediatric renal transplantation. Among the latter group, recipients with acute rejection had a significantly lower number of CD200+ peritoneal cells compared with the group that did not have acute rejection, suggesting a correlation between the presence of CD200+ peritoneal cells and the rejection of the kidney. In order to evaluate whether the CD200+ cells were macrophages, we performed CD73 and CD83 analysis. CD73+ CD200+ and CD83+ CD200+ cells were identified in peritoneal cells. Our results demonstrate that CD200 is expressed on peritoneal macrophages, and its presence seems to be associated with the rejection of renal grafts. In addition, CD200/A20 analysis on peritoneal cells may represent a useful tool for identifying patients who have rejection episodes after renal transplantation.

Armenian police will start checking Turkish people's IDs if they enter the country's territory illegally, Turkish media reported. However, the government has not yet made any official statement on the issue. Armenian security forces will reportedly conduct inspections on Turkish citizens going into the country illegally, and if they find someone with an Armenian passport they will inform Turkish border guards, who will check the passport, according to the Hürriyet Daily News. According to the report, the decision was taken after a large number of people – estimated to be about 1,000 – crossed into Armenia in the past six months. Many of the people have been reported to have been fishing on the border. The Turkish newspaper also said that the police will be given the authority to fine people who enter the country illegally. The Turkish government is investigating a report that alleged that nearly 1,500 people who crossed the border into Armenia from Turkey had been killed or are missing, and Turkish Prime Minister Ahmet Davutoğlu has said that anyone fleeing Armenia will be protected. However, in a report last week, Armenia's border patrol service said that more than 1,000 people have illegally crossed from Turkey to Armenian territory in the last two months, losing their lives in the process. Meanwhile, Turkish Vice President Fuat Oktay on Friday announced that his country and Armenia will hold normalization talks and start negotiations on the disputed territories in the near future, state-run Anadolu Agency reports. "We are carrying out normalization talks with Armenia. As soon as that issue is settled, we will continue the process of normalization talks on the remaining issues with Armenia. Time will soon tell whether we can reach agreements on all of the four issues."Q: Adding numbers to a list I have recently been learning python and I am having trouble with a basic task, so I am hoping that I can get some help. The contents are the following: [0, 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9] I would like to add one to each number, so I do this: a = [0, 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9] for x in a: x += 1 I'm assuming that this was the correct way to go about doing it. When
