"Does flying your own wings truly make you a bird?" As the three former members of Soaring Club "Wing" start high school, they find themselves suddenly in the possession of a strange and ornate embroidery - the wings of their once-forgotten past. How will the three former friends manage to bond over this mysterious invention? Unlocked Bonus If the game is played for more than 120 seconds on the day Kazuto Kurita makes his way to the top of the Soaring Club, you will be able to obtain an "Unlocked Bonus" - the embroidery "Flowing Wings" - which can be used in the game. Routes All routes are open, and each story can be played out of order. Once you begin a route, you can choose to play it again with a higher rank. In order to access the route, you will need to unlock some points in the main story and earn the required number of points. Ranking If you play the routes a higher rank, you will be able to receive enhanced points for various game elements. Extra Content There is extra content for each route which you can obtain by opening optional CG videos and postcards. * A page will appear after you unlock the route for the first time. * The page will not appear during subsequent playthroughs. I want to fly the world of clouds! It's difficult to explain just what you see as the top of a windmill reaches up into the sky. But if we break open the sky all the way, we can fill it all the way up with the goal of that place. We're taking flight - onward and upward! "There can be no place more beautiful than this sky!" Even though we're in Kazegaura, the wind is strong. As Aoi stands in the sea of blades, his eyes meet those of his friends gathered there. They seem to be sharing the same sentiment that fills his heart, as well: to soar like the wind into the distant sky! I want to fly with you As the arrival of summer brings with it the goal of taking to the skies, there are no lines to cross. You can stay here together with us, in this sky as beautiful as these flowers. Now, if you'll excuse me, I'd like to do some kite-flying. Let's fly together! Aoi, who has been flying with the So

For some reason Steam takes forever to list my controllers (a Logitech RumblePad2). Normally it takes about 5-10 seconds. Any idea why it would take on Steam but more like 5 minutes on my steam account page. Alyssa wrote:For some reason Steam takes forever to list my controllers (a Logitech RumblePad2). Same for me, I only had 50 more seconds before I got an error message that said something about my accounts IDs and passwords being different. Really annoying that it affected my Steam account

Most hidden cameras are found in schools, the residence or the workplace. Don't buy an "easy to hide" spy camera since it could be the first one to be discovered. When you are looking for a new office or a room in the house which is going to be locked, then the only one reliable way to go is to install a hidden spy camera. When you want to watch over your kid's safety as they play outside, there is no better way than to have a hidden camera spy. Your new hidden spy camera will probably outsmart any other video monitor around. You are going to have the power to see anything happening all the time from a distance and to record all the significant events occurring inside the room you are monitoring. Also you could be able to catch someone cheating on their spouse or someone stealing from you. If you are after quality camera spying items then you should be able to find the spy camera you are looking for on the market. There are literally hundreds of different spy cameras on the market and everyone of them is able to do pretty much the same thing. There are some hidden spy cameras which are good at super resolution while others record in higher definition quality than any other camera you can buy. The quality of a hidden camera is almost never a determining factor on where to buy. It is always a good idea to look for a hidden spy camera which comes with a long operating time. Once you have installed a hidden camera you are going to have to keep it on for a long period of time before you find the person or people who are looking for it. What's new:

I am going to be very candid and transparent about this post in order to highlight the truth of my experiences and emotions during this 'Car'flight to Kuala Lumpur (KL). I thought long and hard before I wrote the following as the facts and details are important in documenting the situation and what happened. They need to be witnessed and remembered, along with the emotions and feelings that came with it. I also knew that whatever I needed to say, I would only do it when I was completely calm and composed because this was an experience that I want to remember. I would like you to know that through this post the only purpose is to relieve the suffering of having spent 40 hours in a car that was broken and virtually impossible to drive back into tiny 'non fancy' airport in KL. The attempt was abandoned as the safety of the driver and the other passengers was paramount. And no this trip wasn't an insurance scam to cover for a 'long term' use of 'Company car'. I was sitting in the last seat in the back seat of a Honda Civic held together with over 4 layers of tape and glue. There was no work I had to do on the front. Throughout the year I have never had a car like it, a 'Car' that I could flick the ignition switch and go but that was it - the car if it were broken. It was a huge daily challenge for me to determine how to get it going and when I did, the battery strength was very unpredictable, sometimes the car couldn't be turned on and sometimes it ran with no effort. So the first 20 or so hours of this trip were relatively easy. As we crossed into Johor Bahru in Johor state we drove off the Hume highway and into the very sheltered Hynos Water Park where we could just about see the airport when the car was turned off, and the next day we managed to actually land the car right on the runway. The Hynos junction 4 was just a small connection road which cut off the Hume highway from the road to KL and connected with a loop which was the 'highway' used by road trains, trucks and normal passenger vehicles. This loop was very wide as it was meant as a motorcycle lane, for multi vehicle use. After that plus the bridge across the river that starts in Johor Bahru, you got to the airport easily enough and with no more issues although we did in fact stop at
