Q: Why for each element in a list of lists does each return an error? I'm using python 2.6 and I'm trying to get an output that would look something like: Out[136]: [[[1, 1, 1], [1, 1, 1]], [[1, 1, 1], [1, 1, 1]], [[1, 1, 1], [1, 1, 1]], [[1, 1, 1], [1, 1, 1]], [[1, 1, 1], [1, 1, 1]], [[1, 1, 1], [1, 1, 1]]] However, I'm getting the following error: Out[137]: Traceback (most recent call last): File "C:\Python26\code\asian.py", line 33, in for m in sublists: File "C:\Python26\code\asian.py", line 34, in for m in sublists: File "C:\Python26\code\asian.py", line 33, in for m in sublists: TypeError: sequence item 0: expected str instance, numpy.matrix I'm not sure why I'm getting this error...I was just trying to figure out how to list the inner list elements for each element in the list of lists. Any help would be appreciated! A: I'm not sure why you want to print inner list elements. You can just use nested looping for this like, for sublists in vals: for m in sublists: print m But, for printing the inner list elements better is to loop over sublists. for sublists in vals: for m in sublists: print m[0] But, if you have to print both at once, this wont help you.
