The news and stories that matter, delivered weekday mornings. A Connecticut school board teacher was arrested Friday for allegedly taking a cellphone picture of a student during a sexual act, police said. Stephanie Gajiglo, 51, was charged with breach of peace and risk of injury to a minor, according to police in New Haven. Gajiglo, a teacher at Henry J. Lederer Middle School in New Haven, is accused of taking a picture with her cell phone of a 14-year-old boy who was "inserting his penis into her," police said. Stephanie Gajiglo New Haven, CT Police Dept. The image was taken at the end of a wrestling match on Wednesday and sent to the boy's mother, police said. Police said they identified the victim after Gajiglo sent him a text message offering sex if he sent her $100. Let our news meet your inbox. "We went in search of a friend of the victim's who had received one of the messages and the boy's mother was contacted about it." "It's a humiliating incident and it didn't have to occur," McCallister added. "The response was from a good, conscientious person, rather than a teacher." Gajiglo was released on $1,000 bond, NBC Connecticut reported. Police asked that anyone with information on the case call them at 203-962-5300. Henry J. Lederer Middle School was closed Friday as police investigated the alleged incident. New Haven is located about 40 miles (64 kilometers) north of New York City. The Associated Press and NBC News could not immediately locate a lawyer for Gajiglo.Louise: Per our discussion, attached are the credit worksheets from the 2000 and 2001 Commodity Structuring Agreements (ISDA's) between Enron North
