The present invention relates generally to a connector having a pair of parallel side walls to absorb vibration, and more specifically to a pair of parallel side walls with bolt holes for inserting the bolts for tightening the connector. This application is a continuation of U.S. application Ser. No. 10/124,644 filed Apr. 30, 2002, which is a continuation of U.S. application Ser. No. 09/835,094 filed Apr. 30, 2001, now U.S. Pat. No. 6,484,090, which is a continuation of U.S. application Ser. No. 09/568,855 filed May 7, 2000, which is a continuation of U.S.

application Ser. No. 09/475,328 filed Jan. 6, 2000, which is a continuation of U.S. application Ser. No. 09/249,742 filed Feb. 5, 1999, now U.S. Pat. No. 6,089,603, which is a continuation of U.S. application Ser. No. 09/203,417 filed Dec. 7, 1998, now U.S. Pat. No. 6,079,973. The previous application disclosed a connector with a pair of parallel side walls for absorbing shock transmitted from a vehicle. The connector of this application is for a latch mechanism. Two parallel side walls of the latch mechanism are provided for supporting a connector member. The connector member is supported for rocking movement on a connector housing. A pawl is mounted to the connector housing for engaging the connector member. The latch mechanism has an internal structure of a pivotal latching plate and a pawl. A bolt extends through the latching plate and a bolt hole of the latch mechanism. The bolt is extended outwardly from the latch mechanism. A nut is threadedly engaged with the bolt for tightening the latching plate and the pawl on the connector member. It is desirable to provide a bolt hole and bolt with a stronger connection such that vibration of the vibration source will not be particularly, to an information processing apparatus and an information processing method which execute a process of downloading audio information from a host apparatus to a client apparatus and transferring the downloaded audio information. In recent years, it is common that digital video recording and reproducing apparatuses such as video cameras are connected to a network (local area network (LAN), home network, etc.) and other digital audio-visual apparatuses as peripheral apparatuses. The digital video recording and reproducing apparatuses have been also used as AV (Audio Visual) players which control other apparatuses as AV servers, thereby making it possible to download audio information or video information, recorded in the video recording and reproducing apparatus, to the apparatus as a video server, so that the audio information or the video information can be output to another apparatus connected to the apparatus as an audio server. The video recording and reproducing apparatus will be hereinafter referred to as a “host apparatus” and the audio server as a “client apparatus”. When the host apparatus downloads audio information or video information, which is recorded in the host apparatus, to the client apparatus, the client apparatus has to perform operations of checking the content of the audio information or video information, etc. before downloading the audio information or video information to the client apparatus. Such operations take a lot of time and the client apparatus cannot download the audio information or video information at a high speed from the host apparatus.
