1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a novel method for producing a water-repellent film, and more particularly, to a method for producing a water-repellent film excellent in not only its anti-splash properties but also its sliding properties by forming a water-repellent layer composed of a polyurethane composition on a surface of a substrate having a high sliding property.

2. Description of the Related Art It is recently required that the surfaces of various members used in automobile engines, transmissions, and in other various systems in a vehicle be made highly durable against attack of water droplets. The water droplets are easily attached to the vehicle and the power train of the vehicle. Even if the water droplets are attached to the parts, the adhering water droplets will not be easily washed off. Also, when the water droplets are attached to the parts of the vehicle body, the human body, and the hands and the hair, the parts, the human body, and the hair are washed and thereby the working environment in the vehicle system is spoiled and the working environment in the automobile system is also spoiled. Heretofore, in order to prevent the adhesion of water droplets to the surfaces of members of the above systems, the surfaces of these members have been coated with a fine film having a good anti-adhesion property to the water droplets. As the fine film of this kind, a hydrophilic film composed of a composite of a water-repellent resin and a hydrophilic resin is known (JP-A-5-225704, JP-A-5-280736). Further, there is known a water-repellent film which is composed of a polyurethane resin composition as a water-repellent agent and which is excellent in anti-splash property, water-repellency and sliding property of rubber, and is also excellent in flame retardancy (JP-A-7-170682, WO92/19132). However, in the case where the 6d1f23a050
