I don't see anything about copying your video file for the installation. (if that's what you mean by a clean install) Make sure your GPU is ready to go. The last step is use a video application to create the video file. After that you can open the video file in any video editing software. That way you won't have to burn the video file to disc. All of the plugins are here: i see nothing in your question about what your software looks like. I'm assuming Windows unless you mention another. If you're using Windows or Mac you can usually find the trial version here: If you want the trial version you can select your c6a93da74d
